CONSTITUTION TINKERING

Senator Culbert L. Olsen of Los Angeles is sponsoring an initiative measure to appear on the next ballot, calling for a unicameral, or one-house legislature of 50 members.

There is one thing I admire about this Epic leader and that is the pole and balance he evidences under any and all conditions. He is not of the ranting type, but goes along the even tenor of his way, confident he is right, and not indulging in useless lamentations when his objective are blocked. Men may differ with him but they respect him as an individual and the sincerity of his views. I had the opportunity to observe him under very trying circumstances during the last session of the legislature and although he was not very successful in getting his Epic ideas written into the statutes, he retained the good will and respect of those colleagues who constituted the majority.

ANOTHER EXPERIMENT

His plan to cure our legislative ills, like many other ideas which are daily cropping up, cannot be anything but an experiment and I seriously doubt if it will prove a cure for the diseases of the body politic.

WHY CHANGE?

The whole proposition resolves itself into the question of discarding our form of government and resorting to untitled methods. Whether that be wise is open to serious question.

Briefly stated the legislative de-

Boy In Game With Cops Of Four Cities

This is the tale of four cities and the doubtful hero of the episode, who out-Houdini-ed the late master magician, will be known from now on as Profit—because he had a habit of disappearing.

It all started late yesterday afternoon when Police Officer Howard Thulin of El Cerrito picked up 12-year-old Profit on San Pablo avenue. The boy had a bicycle which he was vainly endeavoring to sell for $1.50. Questioned by the officer, Profit said he bought the bicycle from a boy in Richmond Annex Thulin called a Richmond cop to go with them to the Annex to see the boy who sold Profit the bike.

Film Actor Is Badly Wounded By Wild Lion

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23.—UP—Doctors fought tonight to save Chas. Bickford, trawny he-man of the movies from "jungle poisoning" infection in the neck where he was chewed by an enraged lion this afternoon while filming scenes for "East of Java."

Dr. Paul McGill, who cauterized the ragged wounds, said a shoulder muscle had been severed by a ripping claw of the lion, who pronounced on Bickford unexpectedly and had to be beaten off.

"It was necessary to stitch the muscle together," Dr. McGill said. "Mr. Bickford will be all right if infection does not set in, but in most wounds of this character there is extreme danger. A lion's mouth and claws usually are dirty."

Fake Extras Scored By Dr. Hinkley

Councilman A. B. Hinkley, at the meeting of the council last evening, objected very seriously to the "fake" extras who bring fake extras for outside papers to this city, and with their raucous noise, palm them off on an unsuspecting public.

"Doc" said that when you purchased one of them that you found what they had, had been published by the local papers hours before, Hinkley said the noise they made, both day and night in the vicinity of Tenth street made it almost impossible to do any business during the daytime, or sleep at night time.

HEALTH REPORT

During the past month, there were 9 automobile accidents in the city and 8 outside, in which 13 persons were injured in Richmond and 16 outside.

Health statistics for August showed 25 births and 19 deaths.

One Man Jailed, Another Breaks Leg Over 'Nap'

One man was in jail and a second was in a hospital with a broken leg as the result of a "nap" on the floor of a local hotel yesterday morning.

According to police, William Trapheagen, 52, of 321 Macdonald avenue, selected a soft spot on the floor of his hotel when he arrived home at about 4:30 A. M.

Charles Jackson, a resident of the hotel, arrived home a short time later and walking through the dim hallway, tripped and fell, breaking his right leg. Jackson was taken to the hospital and Trapheagen was removed to the city jail. Yesterday he appeared before Police Judge C. A. Odell and was given 30 days in the county jail.

ITALY WILL NOT DEVIATE FROM PLANS

DJIBOUTI, French Somali-land, Tuesday, Sept. 24.—UP—Fear of an uprising of Africa's colored peoples in a common cause against the whites as a result of the threatened Italian invasion of Ethiopia today caused colonial powers in East Africa to act dramatically to control their native subjects.

Military forces were strengthened on the borders of British Somaliland, Kenya, Uganda and the Sudan. The French sent a detachment of Senegalese to Alsabita last outpost of French Somaliland.

GENEVA, Sept. 23.—UP—The League of Nations refused today to settle the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel on Premier Benito Mussolini's terms.

Rejection of the dictator's counter-proposals by the League committee of five dealt an unexpectedly prompt and severe rebuff to the first Italian gesture toward conciliation.

BACK TO LEAGUE

The committee will throw the whole dispute back to the League Council, which is expected to meet tomorrow or Wednesday to consider a situation once more overwhelmingly grave.

Since all members of the five-power committee were firm against Italy's terms, it is an (Continued on page Eight)

Chest Drive Body Of Tribune Is Opened At Luncheon

With a large group of civic leaders present, Richmond's Community Chest crusade was launched yesterday with a luncheon at the Richmond clubhouse.

P. W. Drummer, this year's campaign chairman, prophesied early success for the campaign and lauded the spirit which has pervaded the ranks of the entire organization since the beginning.

Dr. T. A. Boyer, county probation officer, was the speaker of the day, touching on the greatness of America and the efforts it has made in the past to do something about the problems of the under privileged, the undernourished and the other unfortunate. Two Burglaries Are Investigated

Two burglary reports were made to city police and the sheriff's office on Monday.

P. W. Willmer, of San Pablo, reported to the sheriff's office that some one entered his home and stole $11 in cash.

Richmond police were investigating the robbery of the Golden State Creamery here, sometime Sunday night. More than $1000 was taken by the cracksmen who hampered the lock off a night deposit box. The night deposit box was used by milk truck drivers who deposit their collections until the plant is opened in the morning.

WORKER DIES IN TUMBLE OVER CLIFF

Joseph Manola, 54, of 1419 Cortina street, El Cerrito, was not only killed but his body was left at work at the Hui Hui market in El Cerrito.

Manola, a Chinese, fell from a high building on a rocky cliff. He fell in addition to a great crowd of broken ribs and crushed lungs.

This was the second accident to occur at the market in a short time. On September 14, a man belonging to El Cerrito was killed when he fell into a gutter at the market.

WAS A DEBIL

Manola, according to El Cerrito police and the coroner's office was employed as a driver at the market. He was 54 and two other men were at work on the face of a cliff above the quarry, shoveling away earth and sand to prevent a landslide during the rainy season. Manola, Leonard John, Nicodemus and C. P. P. were using ropes attached to iron posts driven into the ground as a safety precaution while doing the work.

In some manner the iron post holding the rope that Manola was using, slipped and the rope caught Manola and fell 175 feet to his death.

POLICE INVESTIGATE

Quarry officials called El Cerrito police and the Wilson and Kratzer ambulances. Ambulance attendants pronounced Manola dead on arrival there.

The body has been brought to the Wilson and Kratzer church where funeral services and an inquest are pending.

Officers of the El Cerrito police department and Deputy Coroner W. P. Drummer investigated the death.

Ford Car Awarded By Local Merchants

Someone in Richmond today is holding the ticket which will entitle him or her to drive away a brand new Ford V8 awarded at a drawing held last night by the Richmond Merchants' Association.

Number A 79901 to the first of 20 numbers drawn from a box and this number is the one which will win for the ticket holder the new Tudor sedan.

The holder of this ticket, however, must claim the Ford before six o'clock this evening, if the person fails to do so, then the holder of the second ticket, No. A 23387, will be declared the winner. Should the holder of the second ticket fail to claim the car before six o'clock Wednesday evening, then the car will be awarded to the third ticket.

If, by some accident, none of the 20 numbers called claim the car then another drawing will be held by the Merchants' Association within 24 days, it was announced.

Last night's award was witnessed by a record crowd. Through the courtesy of P. E. Johnson, two racks used as stairs were placed on the south side of Macdonald avenue between Elsie and Ninth

It is expected that a large number of members of Admiral Dewey camp will go to the San Francisco Veterans Memorial building Wednesday evening to assist in the ceremonies welcoming the honor guest.

Settlement Of Coal Strike Is Now Imminent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—UP—Early settlement of the bituminous coal strike, involving 400,000 miners, was indicated tonight when union leaders and operators ended a friendly conference and agreed to meet again tomorrow.

After conferring at a hotel for four hours and a half the representatives of labor and capital said there was no necessity for a night session. They adjourned and went to dinner.

Throughout the nation, meanwhile, 400,000 miners were staying away from work, waiting for their leaders either to rescind the strike call or send out orders for a prolonged walkout.

For almost the first time since the negotiations started early yesterday, Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady had a smile on his face when the conference broke up.

"The situation looks hopeful," he said, "very hopeful. In fact, I am figuring on catching a plane tomorrow and going up to New York to see the Baer-Louis fight."

SALARY OF JURIST IS ELIMINATED

An economy program which took away the entire salary of Police Judge and Recorder A. G. Thompson, cut the salaries of Chief of Police R. R. Cheek and City Engineer H. D. Chapman eliminated the salaries of the councilmen and cut the number of council meetings to two a month was adopted by the El Cerrito City Council last evening.

The economy move plan was broached by Mayor Hans M. Nissen, who said that city funds were so low that retrenchment was necessary and asked the cooperation of his fellow members. In fact he made the motion himself, which when put to a vote was unanimously passed. There was no discussion other than the explanatory remarks by the mayor.

Chief of Police R. R. Cheek who has been receiving $190 was reduced to a monthly pay of $175 while City Engineer H. D. Chapman, under the economy program will receive only $25 monthly instead of $50. The councilmen heretofore have received $6 per meeting, which will effect a saving of $120 a month. With the salary of the police judge out of the picture, $30, the total savings will aggregate $250 a month.

Judge Thompson finds himself in the rather peculiar position of having a position with no salary emoluments attached thereto. He is still police judge with all the powers incidental to and vested in the office, and can function, as usual, but will not be paid for his work.

It was rumored that the Council planned to have Justice of the Peace A. H. MacKinnon act as police judge without pay. It is not likely, however, that such a move will be made, for until such time as Judge Thompson's appointment is cancelled he remains the de facto officer.

Rumor have been current for several months that Judge Thompson was slated for dismissal, but no official action has ever been taken along that line.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

EDITOR'S NOTE: In order to gauge the temper of the country toward the New Deal at a time when the President himself is about to gauge the temper, "The Washington Merry-Go-Round" will carry a series of political diagnoses from various sections of the United States. This is the first of the series.

PITTSBURGH—Whether the vast industrial empire which is the State of Pennsylvania goes for or against the New Deal in 1936 depends chiefly on a handful of machine Democratic bosses and what they do in the next few months.

If the election were held today, the miracle probably would take place, and this stronghold of Republican conservatism, which boasts Boies Penrose, Matt Quay, and Joe Grandy, would go Democratic.

That is the definite trend today. Roosevelt has gained since 1932, and the Democratic machine has been hoisted with him. Even Joe Guffey, Democratic boss of the state, who for years played ball with the Mellons, the Dave Reed, and other pillars of Republicanism, has traveled in a position of some popularity and considerable respect as a result of his four-term performance in the Senate.

But all this is built on precarious and shifting soil. Pennsylvania has learned what she could not seem to learn for a half a century—the art of scratching halloos. And many things may upset the New Deal's newly found popularity.

One of these recently has cropped out in the Parole Board scandal. It may prove to be just the ammunition the Republicans need to start the Democratic landslide slide the other way.

The Pennsylvania Committee on Parole Affairs has recently disclosed the political subservience of the parole system by a group of Democratic machine bosses, which matches the spirit of hand of the old Republican machine in all its glory.

The parole staff, which had won the reputation of being one of the most efficient and non-political in the state, suddenly has become the personal domain of State Attorney General Charles J. Coughlin.

Into it he has dumped in D. Pittsburgh office alone, "one former dance hall bouncer, a radio commentator and law student, a house painter, a fruit and produce salesman, a stationary engineer, a machinist and a steel worker."

Others are listed by the Committee on Parole Affairs as "an appointee 60 years old who fails utterly on the job, one who has only an eighth grade education and is unfit for the work; tailor, grocer, unemployed and too ill to work, in business with father; no substantial position; investigator, deputy marshal, contractor."

Many of these were Democratic division leaders and committeemen. What has reacted is a boom against the Democrats has been the fact that simultaneously with these appointments, the parole and prison system is planning to spend $17,000,000 on maintenance and improvements.

Politics and contracts are old bedfellows in Pennsylvania, as several newspapers critical of the Administration have warned Democratic Governor Earle with great delight.

Up until the parole scandal, Earle had kept the old time politics pretty well at bay, had given a surprisingly good account of his first year in office. But now the political bar is coming his way.

On how tightly he holds the reins over his State losses for the next twelve months, is going to depend whether Pennsylvania fulfills Jim Earle's proud boast that it will so overwhelmingly New Deal in 1936.

NEW MACHINE—OLD FACES. Meanwhile Western Pennsylvania is developing a smooth-running Democratic machine while the old Republican machine is full of squeaks and rattles. Some of the forces of the Democratic machine formerly were vigorous ward workers for the Republicans, transferring their allegiance to the Democrats when they saw a new hand was driving by.

In 1921 and in three elections thereafter, the people of Pittsburgh rebelled against the old Republican bosses and when the latter tried to hang on to control, the county eventually became heavily Democratic.

Now, for its fifth successive election, the old Republican crowd again has captured several important nominations for county offices and faces its fifth defeat. Chief of them is Senator Jimmy Coyne who spoke through to a nomination for county commission, when he got out a strong machine vote in a primary characterized generally by tight balloting.

But Coyne finds himself opposed by some of his former ward lieutenants, now wearing the Democratic label, including John Verone, Alderman of the Hill district and Luke Sullivan and his brother, former Congressman P. J. "Paddy" Sullivan, exors of Pittsburgh's biggest controlled district, and Charles Papale, new Democratic nominee for Clerk of Courts. Two former independent Republicans, city councilmen P. J. McAvail and Chas. Anderson, are also Democratic nominees for the same office, in which they were elected four years ago as Republicans.

Thus the smooth Democratic organization has gained strength from each crumb of its former Republican opposition.

David L. Lawrence, State Democratic chairman, was a candidate for county commissioner four years ago with Coyne support and they were partners in an insurance business, but recent indications have been that they are now genuinely at the outs politically.

With indications pointing to a Democratic victory in November, Republicans thus find themselves gravely menaced by men who until recently were powers in their own party.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23.—UP—For the uninitiated, it has been a long time since the movies, Eddy Duchin has "Hollywood" to thank.

He started it as a planned record of the Hollywood effort to live up to the motto, "Be a good citizen." But it's a shop as operator of a new drama store.

Times kept running through his head, however, and his finger, it is said for the picture kept on it.

He had a job with Leo Feistman, a writer at the old, Walter A. Fortia, in New York in 1925, when he came to the Hollywood Central Park Casino.

When the season closed, he was left, but Duchin stayed.

The speaker's name, Society for Film and Photo, and he decided to do more of it. Eddy formed his own hand and success came immediately.

Continually thrown in with the film crowd, it was not until 1926 that the 26-year-old hand leader eventually married a society girl. On June 2, Marjorie Delich, of New York, came to his life.

Miss Delichs knew she would be suspended from the society list, but in a recent interview, said:

"I have Eddy. Nothing else matters. Money for the Social Register? It's just a private telephone book, anyway."

Duchin's first film work is in "Coronado" at Paramount.

LEGION GIVEN BARE FACTS

Seeking information concerning entertainment arranged for Legionnaires when they visit the California Pacific International Exposition in San Diego on Saturday and Sunday, October 5 and 6, Val Dage, secretary of the American Legion Days committee, ascertained that every concession and exhibit along the Midway and throughout Gold Gulch will stage special events and attractions.

Dage invaded the Nudist Colony where he was told that the nudists will offer an elaborate presentation of their mythological legend "The Sacrifice of Zoro, God of Light."

America's Exposition is all set for the Legionnaires.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—As a simple Broadway stroller, I never suspected that the Eastside girls had secret ambitions for the higher things in the drama.

I always thought they were nice, healthy creatures who might have a repressed desire, perhaps, but who really were content to earn a respectable living without claiming to be rivals of Duse and Sarah Bernhardt. But it seems I am all wrong. The delectable ladies are going in for art in a big way.

First of all, there's Betty Rand, the bare-bellied girl who has been running for a series. The pianist, venture, ever since her Summer stock appearance in the title role of "Rain," when, at least two plays dealing with the theme of the first, tense artist are about to appear in Manhattan's legitimate playhouses.

"Body Beautiful" and "Strip Wagon," finally, Lucy Rose, a young, charming graduate, has just been engaged for the forthcoming musical revue, "New Faces."

It just goes to show what happens when a columnist gets too suspicious. Several years ago Gypsy Rose Lee swore to me on her honor that she used up her spare time painting oil portraits of her friends.

I might have prophesied her future if I had had more faith.

SHEEN—GI Boar is opening a swank new restaurant on East 57th Street, where Park Avenue dwellers will be able to get their dinner without benefit of floor shows and masters of ceremonies. It's called the Cafe de L'Opera, and it looks like the new place-setter for the gilded cafes. Classic music and low conversation will take the place of blaring bands and wisecracks—which pleases me, for one.

Rose was probably the first man to start a night club in town. Way back in 1917 he owned the Little Club on West 14th Street, which became the model for thousands of small, fashionable dine and dance spots in Manhattan. He and Jimmy Thompson owned seventeen at one time—including Rector's, the Palais Royle, the Rendezvous and the Piccadilly.

When Prohibition came in, Bag went out of business. He sniffed the coming of the racketeers when the first odor of home brew hit the town, and immediately decided to shut up shop. Now that manners and leisure have returned to Fashion, GI's coming on for air again.

The Cafe de L'Opera was formerly the Embassy Club. Originally, there were two stables on the plot, and Samuel Riker, who owns the property, can recall the time when they used to drive the cows in from pasture.

That was in the days when New Yorkers drank milk.

MANHATTAN VIGNETTE—The scene is West 14th Street, late afternoon in front of the Salvation Army offices. A bent-backed laborer walks by with his wife and little boy. On the curb is a fortune-teller dressed in a turban and delivering his sales spiel in a nasal drone.

The little boy gazes curiously at the turbaned hawker, and then queries: "Papa, what's that?"

Papa grabs him importantly as he replies: "Oh, Hallelu-Selah, come on!"

SNIPPETS—My statistics file shows one that... The New Buildings on East End Street had more cops than most small cities... The state consists of 65 private uniforms, sendances and a chief... They hold regular military drills, and each one carries a revolver, a black jack, a pair of handcuffs and a tear gas bomb... Looking for trouble...

The latest agent in New York City lies between Fifth and Sixth Avenues from 23rd to 42nd street.

Most people think it's Times Square, but there are more showplaces than theater seats in this town, remember... It's twenty-one years since W. C. Handy wrote the "St. Louis Blues"... Handy can stroll up the Midway feeling anything but blue about that.

LEGION GIVEN BARE FACTS

Seeking information concerning entertainment arranged for Legionnaires when they visit the California Pacific International Exposition in San Diego on Saturday and Sunday, October 5 and 6, Val Dage, secretary of the American Legion Days committee, ascertained that every concession and exhibit along the Midway and throughout Gold Gulch will stage special events and attractions.

Dage invaded the Nudist Colony where he was told that the nudists will offer an elaborate presentation of their mythological legend "The Sacrifice of Zoro, God of Light."

America's Exposition is all set for the Legionnaires.

DOUBLE BILL FOR BANK NIGHT AT THE FOX

Today marks a new entertainment milestone at the Fox Theatre, where Fox Film's modern dramatic spectacle, "Dante's Inferno," heads a new double program for bank night which also includes "Brewster's Millions," a comedy musical romance.

Said to be the most important picture that the Fox has ever shown on a double bill, "Dante's Inferno" has Spencer Tracy, Claire Trevor, Henry B. Walthall and Alan Dinehart heading the large featured cast.

"Dante's Inferno" is the story of a modern sinner and his climb to wealth through deceit and trickery. It is when this man does penance for his crimes that the startling, colorful and frequently awe-inspiring Inferno sequences are employed, as a flashback, conveying its audience through the well-known Plutonian hot spot as Dante himself had pictured it.

"Brewster's Millions" is the new musical farce stars Jack Buchanan and Lily Damita in the same program.

Based on the famous play of the same name by Winchell Smith and Byron Oxford, the film narrates the ironies of a young man named Brewster who is compelled to get rid of half a million pounds in six months in order that he may inherit a much larger fortune.

Herbert Wilcox, who produced "Brewster's Millions," for presentation by United Artists, has turned this complicated story into a lavish musical, introducing new Caranga, the sensational new dance step which promises to outshine the Carioca and the Continental in popularity.

Thomson Freeland, who directed "Whoopie" and "Flying Down to Rio" handled the megaphone, while the song hits are work of Ray Noble and Douglas Furber. The dance numbers were arranged by Buddy Bradley.

Dr. Alexander Dane, just before his death in his isolated country home, gives his stepdaughter, Peggy Trave, a mysterious paper to be delivered in person to a John Paylor in Egypt. He also warns her to let no one in his laboratory. After his death, a letter of condolence is received from Professor Warren Hatley, and Mrs. Dane remarks that the doctor had never seemed to like Hatley. A few days later, Terry Brown, wealthy young sportsman, crashes his plane near the Dane house and, having injured his leg, is put up overnight. That night, Peggy is awakened by the sound of footsteps on the ground outside, but pays little attention to it.

CHAPTER VII

HER mother was already in the dining room when Peggy came down to breakfast. A few minutes later, Elsie came in with the coffee.

"Mornin', Miz Dane. Mornin', Miss Peggy," she said perfunctorily, then added, "There was a good-for-nothin' prowlin' around last night."

"Some tramp probably," Mrs. Dane said, undisturbed.

"Didn't look like a tramp," Peggy put down her glass of orange juice.

"What do you mean, Elsie?" she asked quietly but, remembering the footsteps she had heard, she was filled with a sudden fear.

Elsie placed her hands on her hips. "Round about two o'clock it was, she declared. 'The ache in my tooth was bothering me and I couldn't sleep. I got up and was looking out the window when I saw a man prowling around. The moon was pretty bright, you know, and I saw him quite plain. He was out by the doctor's laboratory."

"Could you see what he looked like?" Peggy asked, trying to sound casual.

"I bet I'd know him if I saw him again. A little fellow, thin and scrawny, all done up in an overcoat too big for him, and he had on one of them caps like chauffeurs wear."

"What was he doing?" "Oh, he just prowled around the laboratory, took a look toward the house, and then went off down the road."

"I don't see that it matters," Mrs. Dane said, "so long as he didn't do any harm."

"No; of course not," Peggy hastened to agree.

NEVERTHELESS, she was very much disturbed, and after a half-hearted attempt at breakfast, she excused herself and went outdoors. She walked toward the laboratory. There were no footprints on the ground—was frozen too hard for that—but she wasn't looking for footprints. When she reached the laboratory, she was relieved to find the door still securely locked but as she examined it more closely, she noticed that there were scratches around the keyholes. Someone had tried to force the locks!

She unlocked the door, but a quick look around convinced her that no one had got in, and she went back to the house reassuring herself with the thought that it would not be an easy task to break into the laboratory. The iron bars on the windows were thick and there were two locks on the door. Overcoat too big for him, and when the key was turned a certain number of times, shot a twelve-inch bolt in place. Nevertheless, someone had made an attempt to get in.

This discovery bothered Peggy so much that she had almost forgotten about Terry until her mother said he was asking for her.

She found him propped up in bed, looking rather pale and drawn, but when she asked if he'd had a bad night, he grinned cheerfully.

"The old leg ached a bit, but mostly I stayed awake thinking of you."

Peggy flushed. She was in no mood this morning to banter and Terry, noticing it, changed his tone.

"Listen," he said, "I imagine they'll be coming for me pretty soon now, and I just wanted to say that I appreciate everything you and your mother have done, and when am I going to see you again?"

"Why, I don't know," Peggy answered, embarrassed.

"Not much more was said on the subject, but later, after a very impressive ambulance had arrived and carried Terry away, a great loneliness caught at Peggy suddenly, and she found herself standing in the doorway of the room he had occupied, wondering if she would ever see him again.

FINALLY, with a sigh, she went downstairs to luncheon. Halfway through the meal, she again mentioned the subject of a letter to her mother, and was surprised by her sudden consent.

"If you think there's money enough," Mrs. Dane said, "I think maybe it would be a good idea. You're looking kind of peaked, dear. I guess the change would do you good."

"Oh, there's money enough now that Newdy isn't using it all in the laboratory."

"Mrs. Dane sighed. "Poor Alec," Peggy thought that "Poor us" would have been more to the point. Dr. Dane had had little enough money of his own and had drawn heavily on his wife's money to carry on his work.

"I think," Peggy said aloud, "that we could get away by the end of the month. I'll write for some steamship circulars."

"Mr. Brown said that if we wrote to the Allen Agency, they'd take care of everything for us," Mrs. Dane said.

Peggy looked at her mother quickly. "You've been discussing the matter with Mr. Brown?"

"Yes—why not?" Mrs. Dane said innocently. "As a matter of fact, it was he who pointed out to me that you were looking badly."

"I think," said Peggy unexpectedly, "that Mr. Brown is a bit too impertinent."

Mrs. Dane looked at her daughter in surprise, but before she could say anything in defence of Terry, they were interrupted by the sound of a car outside.

"In a moment, the doorbell pealed, and Peggy went to answer it. The visitor was a grey-haired, stoop-shouldered man wearing thick spectacles.

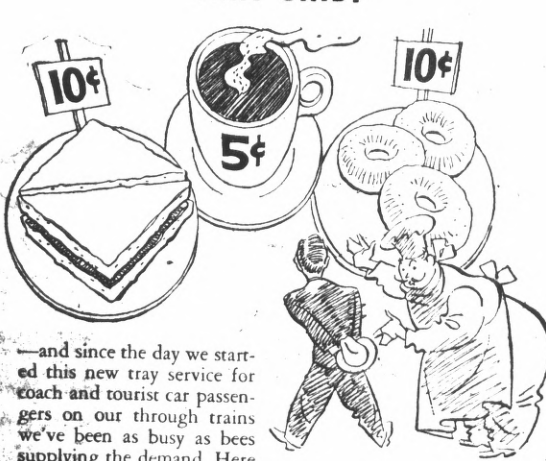

"Peggy, my dear!" he greeted her, shaking her hand warmly.

"Professor Hatley! How nice of you to come!" Peggy tried to make her voice sound convincingly cordial.

As her mother came hurrying into the hall, she moved aside. As she did so, she saw a small, scrawny-looking "fat" man, dressed in an overcoat much too large for him and wearing a chauffeur's cap, coming from the car with a heavy suitcase.

Several Shifts Loom In Lineup Of Bruin Eleven

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23.—With Ted Key, fullback, on the sidelines with injuries for an indefinite period, several shifts loom in the C. C. L. A. lineup as the Bruins prepare for the Utah State Agricultural College contest in the Coliseum next Friday night.

October 7th Is Set For Date Of Torres' Trial

MARTINEZ, Sept. 23.—UP—Ana-dete Torres, suspect held in connection with the murder of Aurelio Cabrera last May, and who purport- edly confessed to the crime after he heard "the voice of the ghost" of the dead man on a radio installed in his cell by police, today refused to talk at his hearing.

In accordance with law, Torres will be brought to trial on a not guilty plea.

Torres, who has twice subjected himself to hunger strikes during his confinement in jail here, played the role of the mute during his hearing and declined to comment throughout the proceedings.

He will be tried October 7.

Officials said that Torres' reaction to the "voice of the dead," in which he assertedly made statements which gave further foundation that he was the murderer of Cabrera, will be used against him.

Tully Is Given 50-Year Term

SUNSANVILLE, Sept. 23.—UP—Thomas A. Tully, 24-year-old son of Jim Tully, noted labor author, was sentenced to one to 50 years in San Quentin prison by Superior Judge H. D. Burroughs today after he pleaded guilty to a statutory charge.

The trial was brief. There was no defense offered to a charge brought against young Tully by Juanita Shephard, 16-year-old Westwood school girl.

She accused Tully, who had been involved in three similar cases in Southern California, and had been sentenced to prison in one of them, of attacking her after they had attended a dance together a week ago Saturday night.

Tully, sultry and meekly, took no interest in the proceedings.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. That's how for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned. It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." ## DISPUTE TO BE GIVEN TO ARBITRATOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23—UP—Settlement of the "hot cargo" dispute between longshoremen and waterfront employers will be up to Judge M. C. Sloss, arbitrator, it was indicated late today.

A meeting of the longshoremen's joint labor relations committee ended abruptly when employers suggested that all questions in the dispute be referred to Judge Sloss. Longshoremen and employers have equal representation on the board. Reference to Judge Sloss was taken to indicate the board was perhaps hopelessly deadlocked.

SHIPS RELEASED

Harry Bridges, longshoremen's representative, said he would answer for his group after he had consulted union attorneys.

Meanwhile employers announced that two ships have been released from tieups. They are Matson freighter Manakal at San Francisco and the Point Ancha at Seattle.

The waterfront was quiet today with apparent normal activity. No pickets of the Bargemen's Union which blockaded four piers Sunday were evident except at pier 2, where six longshoremen gathered to pass picket lines to load the American-Hawaiian freighter, Kinsan.

PICKETS WITHDRAWN

The pickets were withdrawn, however, and the men went to work when they were assured the Kinsan would carry no "hot cargo."

Employers today announced that 275 men in San Francisco and 96 in Oakland have been placed on a suspended list and will not be hired by any ship owner. The suspended list resulted from refusal of various longshore gangs to work ships Saturday.

Five Arrested By State Police Officers

Five persons were arrested on the State highway on Sunday, charged with driving 95 miles an hour and four with reckless driving. Arresting officers reported that they were forced to drive 100 miles an hour to arrest L. M. Fuller, 78, Collins street, San Francisco, on the highway near Tank Farm Hill. Collins told police that his throttle stuck.

W. B. Harrison, 29, of Oakland; L. I. Danielson, 37, of San Diego; Harold Peterson, 37, of Berkeley; and W. K. Kimball, of Vallejo, were arrested on reckless driving charges.

presented at the exposition and day or night, because America's Exposition, 1935, belongs to all of California. It is California's offering to the world. And in three short years, this region will be inviting the world to another great fair, the San Francisco Bay Exposition of 1938. Let's all go to San Diego, and start that exploitation campaign now!

Victor M. Clark, exploitation director of the California Pacific International Exposition, here cooperating with the local committee, told of the welcome that would await local visitors in San Diego.

"The exposition management," Clark said, "will spare no expense to see that the Mayor of Richmond, his official party, and every citizen, they can bring to the fair next Saturday and Sunday, will have the time of their lives."

He explained that seven-day stop-over privileges on the low fare special trains leaving Friday would enable local visitors to remain in San Diego to participate in the welcome to President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who are expected at the early next week. He also told of the elaborate religious program being staged by Anne Temple McPherson and her associates of the To-Square Gospel on Saturday and Sunday.

Reservations should be made with the Chamber of Commerce at the very latest by Thursday evening, by those who intend making the trip.

Quezon Declares Philippines Will Be Independent

MANILA, (Tuesday) Sept. 24—UP—While war clouds gathered on half a dozen horizons, Manuel Quezon, president-elect of the new Philippine Commonwealth today re-dedicated his administration to absolute independence from the United States.

"I once more wish to say most emphatically that I am against an American protectorate. It is idle to talk about, because even if everybody in the Philippines were for it, America would not consider it for a minute," he said.

His statement was issued in response to a speech by Pedro Guervara, before the Manila Law Conference, urging a United States protectorate for the islands as a guarantee of continued island neutrality in troubled international affairs.

problem, and checked that such work as is being done by the Richmond Community Chest is vital if further progress along this line is to be made.

PLANS ARE MADE

Detailed plans for the crusade were laid down by C. A. Warren, the executive in charge of the campaign, he said the movement is on to a remarkable start and that there is every reason for believing the fund will go over the top on schedule time despite the fact that most of the solicitation groups have larger goals to reach this year than last. He pointed Mrs. E. B. LaMoine, who is now heading the women's division for the fifth year. The quota of her group will be $100 larger than last year.

CONTEST PLANNED

In the business district a contest will be inaugurated to see what block can be first with a complete collection of 100 percent honor emblems showing that all their employees have donated the Chamber of Commerce. It was announced, will donate its newspaper advertising space to calling attention to this contest, and will later use the same space to publish the names of all the firms in the winning block. Ernest Hitchcock, T. Emmet Ward and Wally J. Kruger, are the three colonels in charge of the three business district divisions. Their captains and workers are already in the field contending for the honor of winning the coveted position.

President Furrer praised the work of Mrs. H. B. Kinsbury, secretary for the Chest. The luncheon was served by the women of the Wesley M. E. church.

"The Bridge" forms an integral part of our state highway system and the story of its construction, progress, and probable date of completion will be of interest to many bay city residents.

-a word in edgewise; wise and otherwise

partments of our government, both state and national, are based on the theory of two houses of lawmaking bodies, one acting as a counter or check to the other to prevent hasty and ill-considered legislation. To all intents and purposes the theory has proven itself to be sound. It has functioned efficiently ever since the government was founded and has justified its existence. No sound or valid reason has been adduced why we should change, particularly when such change offers no hope for betterment in any way. The contention that our upper house is controlled by special interests I do not believe to be true, but if true it would not uphold the senator's contention. The members of the State Senate were elected in the same manner as the House and if these men do not represent the interests of the people, the remedy is in our hands to apply, either at a regular election or through the recall, once touted as a cure-all for just such conditions, as those of which the Erie leader so bitterly complains.

CURRENT PHOBIA

It seems to be a phobia at the present time to advocate constitution tinkering. If we adopted all the laws so alluringly spread before us, I am afraid that we could soon find ourselves in an awful mess. Those who have been given a free rein in experimentation have not done so well, and their theories have failed to produce the results claimed for them. It is about time that we got our feet on earth, and instead of trying to work miracles through fantastic schemes, place our faith and reliance in that which has demonstrated its worth, both as to government and other things.

Probation For 12 Farmers In Assault Case

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 23—UP—Stern prison and jail sentences to a dozen farmers who led an assault on a U. S. marshal last month were tempered today with probation orders.

U. S. Judge Albert L. Reeves recalled 12 defendants in a double-barreled case involving contempt of court and conspiracy to obstruct an officer and freed them of sentence.

The action was taken after Reeves conferred with U. S. Attorney Morris M. Milligan who prosecuted the men. Two defendants in the case already have been released and one other had not been sentenced.

Nine Injured In Auto Collision

STOCKTON, Sept. 23—UP—State highway police today had cited Harry Krok, Turlock, and Frank Marano, Westley on reckless driving charges as an outgrowth of an automobile collision near Stockton Sunday in which nine men were injured.

Police said a car driven by Krok collided with the rear end of a truck driven by Marano. Krok, Marano, Jim Traill of Westley and Douglas Fisher, transient, were released after treatment at San Joaquin general hospital. William O'Leary, Fairfield, Arthur Powell, transient, Wesley Trimble, Stockton and John Armstrong, Vallejo, were still under treatment.

likely the Council will attempt to bargain further with Mussolini.

Ethiopia placed itself in a favorable position by announcing to the committee its acceptance of the committee's five proposals as a basis of negotiation.

OFFER TURNED DOWN
Tekla Hawariat, frail, bearded Ethiopian delegate, rejected Mussolini's suggestion that Italy be given a large slice of Western Ethiopia and that the Ethiopian army be reduced and placed under Italian officers.

"Yes, they told me about the Italian counter proposals," said Hawariat. "You see they want partition of Ethiopia, to put it under Italian force. That is my summary of the Italian proposals."

"My answer is: Never, never, never."

DUCE, BRITISH, CONFER

ROME, Sept. 23—UP—Premier Benito Mussolini and British Ambassador Sir Eric Drummond conferred tonight on the critical international situation. It was reported without confirmation that they discussed a plan to return Italo-Ethiopian peace discussions to the 1906 treaty powers—Britain, France and Italy.

The British envoy's visit to the Venice palace followed announcement at Geneva that the League committee of five had given up efforts to find a compromise and would throw the question back to the Council for decision on possible penalties against Italy.
